Artificial Intelligence is reaching into every segment of society. Banking, Personal Devices, Auto Industry, just to name a few, are experiencing drastic changes. We are told that all transactions are secure, but in today's world of hackers and such---Are all transactions really secure? The danger is when an individual clicks a link in an email that grants access to the person or persons on the other end.

But be of good cheer, most transactions are encrypted. Encryption is the process of converting information or data into a code.

The Notary organizations and notaries must embrace new technology to make the profession viable and part of the process. Technology continues to move forward and new processes are being made available on a daily basis. It is up to Notaries to get involved in their respective states to be on the cutting edge
